MENACE TO FUTURE PEACE OF ITALY AND OF EUROPE SEEN IN RISE OF ITALY'S FASCISTI

PASTOR FIFTY YEARS RENOUNCES FAITH

Rev. Samuel Davis McConnell, pastor of St. Stephen's Protestant Episcopal Church of Philadelphia, has just published a book in which he renounces the faith in which Christian churches are founded.

BY EUGENE J. YOUNG
NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—We have recently witnessed what a great upset can be administered to the equilibrium of Europe by such a thing as the defeat of the Greeks by the Turks. All the arts of statesmanship were required to prevent a complete overturn and catastrophe when the props were knocked out in the Near Eastern corner of the Balance of Power. What, then, is to happen if the pillar of the structure resting on Italy is suddenly to be knocked over by the rise to power of the Fascisti?

Certainly the statesmen have another big job on their hands in dealing with that situation; and Europe and the world will be fortunate if they come off so well as they did with the Turkish crisis. The elements of danger are more potent than they were even at Constantinople and the factional compounds are no less inflammable.

As this situation develops, here are some of the things to be remembered:

(1) The Fascisti organization grew out of the necessity in Italy to end the campaign of the Communists, who were threatening to put the country under Soviet rule. The party has gained such strength and momentum that it feels its mission is to overthrow the present government.

CAR IS OVERTURNED NEAR HYDRO PLANT SATURDAY EVENING

Severe bruises about the body were sustained by Mrs. George Dickerson in a collision between a Studebaker touring car and a Ford, at the Haight watering trough, about a mile west of Roscoe, early Saturday night. The Ford was overturned.

The Studebaker was driven by George Dickerson. The identity of the driver of the Ford could not be learned. Besides Mr. and Mrs. George Dickerson and their daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Dickerson were in the machine. None of the occupants, besides Mrs. Dickerson, was injured.

CANDIDATES ARE HAPPY AT CLOSE OF CLEAN RACE

Absence Of Mud-Throwing Marks Campaign Waged For County Offices

BOTH SIDES HOPEFUL

The old-style method of mud-slinging in political battles is apparently a lost art in Coshocton county, judging by the campaign that has been waged by local candidates.

All of the county candidates have played a clean game so far, fighting for their election on their own merits. No personal attacks have been made publicly, and what little slurring that has been reported as being done under cover, is credited to boosters of candidates, rather than the candidates themselves.

A claim to particular ability in their respective lines of work seems to be the main reason for their own election, advanced by the various aspirants to county offices.

Many of the Republican candidates are endeavoring to make an issue of the open courthouse on Saturday afternoon, but so far have failed to elicit any response from the Democratic candidates.

Some of the Republicans pledge themselves to keep their office open every Saturday afternoon, while others stand for open offices during the rush of tax-paying season. The appeal of an open courthouse on Saturday afternoon is expected to attract the farmer vote, for as a class, the farmers are the greatest objectors to the closed courthouse.

The chairman of both party executive committees were Saturday evening optimistic over the result of the election Tuesday.

S. J. Cardwell, chairman of the Democratic committee, declared that the Democratic party would roll up the largest vote in this county that it has had in years.

"Donabey and Pomeroy," he declared, "will win without a doubt, and party lines will be wiped out in their cases."

"The county candidates, man for man, will make the best officials. The greater part of the Democratic candidates are running for their second term. They have proved themselves capable, and I believe they will be given their second terms without question."

Speaking of the state ticket, Cardwell said, "I believe the people are dissatisfied with the present administration, and will vote for a change. I am sorry the prohibition issue has been injected into the campaign, for I think the

CLUB WOMEN ATTACK PETTING EPIDEMIC, MAN'S EXTRAVAGANCE

FLINT, Mich., Nov. 4.—"Mere man's" extravagance at Washington, the modern "petting" epidemic and the present state of the motion picture industry were some of the things flayed by speakers at the annual convention of the Michigan Federated Women's clubs.

"Women are more adventurous than men," Miss Ida Clyde Clarke, assistant editor of a woman's periodical, declared. "Ever sold Adam something he didn't know he wanted because she was adventurous. Uncle Sam's bachelor apartments in Washington certainly need a woman, too. Man has fumbled peace problems for 400 years, and we are as bad off now as ever. It's now up to the women."

Dr. Mary A. Williams, of Bay City, created a sensation by suggesting organization of an anti-kissing society.

"Physicians have held our kisses unhealthy," she told the delegates. "Their opinion forecasts the day when we shall rub noses like the savage because kisses spread disease."

Dr. Williams advocated that the younger generations be educated away from kissing.

It was Mrs. Clark who attacked to movies.

"They are paying women stars $1,000 per week," she said. "to dress up and imitate human beings. Why don't they go out into the country and there get human beings themselves?"

"Women are doing hundreds of interesting things. Their achievements are far more interesting than most movies, and yet are not broadcasted."

"There are 100 women in the national parliaments and fifteen women mayors in the United States. Women of experience should make the sacrifice of entering public life if we are to accomplish anything. They would stop some of the extravagance at Washington."

RABIES EPIDEMIC THREATENS LIVES THRUOUT COUNTY

County Healthier Warns Owners Of Dogs To Be On The Lookout

MAY MUZZLE DOGS

Five People Are Taking Prophylactic Treatment Of Local Doctors

Warning to owners of dogs was issued Saturday by County Health Commissioner D. M. Criswell, of Coshocton together with the information that an epidemic of rabies is menacing the lives of residents and live stock within the county.

No less than ten dogs have developed the disease within the past five weeks, according to the health commissioner, and five persons bitten by mad dogs are taking the anti-rabic treatment. The heads of five dogs have been sent to state laboratories and in each instance a positive finding has been reported.

A representative of the state department of agriculture, veterinary division, will be in the city next Wednesday to take up with the county commissioners and city council means for the control of the dangerous situation. Dr. Criswell explained that the problem comes under the jurisdiction of the department of agriculture, rather than that of the public health department, but added that he would (Continued on Page Two)

THOMPSON ASSURES TEACHERS HE WOULD PROMOTE SCHOOLS

Concerning allegations to the effect that if elected governor he would take steps that would result in the deprivation of state aid from the weak school districts of Ohio, C. M. Thompson, Republican candidate for governor has been asked by wire to state his position.

In a reply to the query sent by Principal R. E. Welling of the Bakersville schools, Mr. Thompson telegraphed the following message early Saturday.

"I would not take one cent from the schools of Ohio. Educational and welfare work must be encouraged and promoted. The hope of the nation is in its schools. The school system of Ohio must rank with the best, the most advanced and most perfect school systems of the nation."

The subject had been discussed freely among the teachers here to attend the Eastern Ohio Teachers' Association convention, and Mr. Welling took this means of obtaining a direct statement on the matter, which he felt Saturday had been advanced unfairly as campaign charges without foundation.

BOY'S CONDITION IS SATISFACTORY

The condition of Richmond McConnell, 5, son of Russell McConnell, near McGuire's Grove, who was bitten Tuesday on the fingers of the right hand by a mad dog, was considered satisfactory.

On examination, the dog's head, which was sent to Columbus, showed that the canine was afflicted with rabies. The lad and father took the dog's head to Columbus to have it examined. While there the lad was given treatment by a specialist.

Dr. J. G. Smiles is now the attending physician.

RADICALS GAIN

Predicts Great Change In Political Aspect Of Congress Soon

The Elections And Business

WELLESLEY HILLS, Mass., Nov. 4.—In an interview this week with Roger W. Babson, the question of what effect the congressional elections will have upon business, brought from him the following statement:

"I see one interesting issue in the congressional elections, namely, the number of new radical members sent to congress. Those of us in the East do not understand the viewpoint of our western people, hence few are awake to the great change which is coming about in our political line up. Through the present generation, the contest has been between the Republicans and Democrats. The days of this alignment, however, are numbered. Both of the old parties have suffered extensive changes. At least by 1928, and perhaps in 1924, a real contest may be waged between the so-called conservatives on the one side, and the so-called radicals on the other."

"By 'radical' I do not refer to the I. W. W.'s or any group commonly known as Bolsheviks. The new radical party will be more like the Bull Moose party of 1916. The conservative group will represent a combination of both Republicans (Continued on Page Five)

CO-OPERATION OF PRECINCT BOARDS TUESDAY SOUGHT

Once more the Tribune is obliged to call upon the members of the precinct election officials in the 82 Coshocton precincts to telephone the results of the count of ballots to the paper as early as possible after the count is completed Tuesday night.

Compliance with this request will enable the paper to expedite its election night bulletin service and extra edition for the benefit of readers who are in the city, besides enabling the compilation of more complete returns for the county in Wednesday's paper.

The office will be open almost all night for receiving and disseminating news. Our phone numbers are 205 and 206. Let us have your precinct returns promptly, that we may get them to the readers promptly.

'RECOGNIZE SOVIET'

And Repeal Eighteenth Amendment, Platform Of Sen. France

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—While the country has thrilled to the exploits of Brookheart in Iowa, Reed in Missouri, Beveridge in Indiana and other outstanding personalities in this campaign of 1922, here almost in the shadow of the capital there is being brot to a close today the most spectacular "one man campaign" of the season—conducted by and for Joseph Irwin France, Republican senator from Maryland.

France's position is unique among this season's candidates. It is perhaps comparable only to that of Reed in Missouri and even there the analogy fails, for Reed has conducted his fight within party lines, whereas France has campaigned squarely on his record, and his record is mostly clear outside all party lines.

He is the only candidate this year to advance without reservation whatsoever, recognition, and fully dealing with Soviet Russia; he advocates, not light wines and beers, but the complete repeal of (Continued on Page Thirteen)

'TREAT' WITH FOOD NOW

Excess Fat Shortens Life And Burdens Housewives With Popping Buttons

By Harry R. Flory.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—Prohibition is making American men fat, cutting down the average span of life and piling additional work upon the American housewife. That is the indictment of the Eighteenth Amendment found in figures just compiled by the National Life Insurance Company following a national health survey.

It comes about through the American habit of treating, the survey shows. Unable to treat over the bar, Americans treat at the soda fountain, the candy counter and at restaurants.

Result—increased waistlines, less active heart action because of excessive fat and, thus, shorter lives. Increased work for housewives is incidental, occasioned by popping vest buttons.

"While prohibition has been beneficial in thrift, money building and peacefulness it materially has helped fat to become an enemy to human longevity," the survey said. "Except in the rarest instances, persons who live to ripe old ages are thin."

"Exercises too often is taken too violently or merely results in increased appetites and enlarged consumption of food, affecting the good results of abstinence. The one way of stopping an increase in weight is to eat smaller amounts of food. 'Always leave the table hungry' is a good motto."

Hawaiian Isles Are World's Wettest Spot

HONOLULU, Nov. 4.—Here's one of the wettest spots in the world. The annual rainfall record at the station of the U. S. Weather Bureau located on the upper slopes of Panuku, island of Maui, Hawaiian group, is 562 inches. The Panuku gauge stands at an elevation of 5,000 feet. For many years the summit of Mount Waialeale, Kauai, has been accounted the wettest spot in the islands and one of the wettest in the world, but the new record of Panuku defeats it.

CHARLOTTE MILLS PASSES LIE TO MRS. HALL; SAYS RECTOR MARRIED HER WITHOUT LOVE

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Nov. 4.—"God, what a coward I am to have married without love!" was the cry uttered on his honeymoon, by Dr. Edward Hall and later told to Mrs. Eleanor Mills, both of whom were found murdered on September 16, according to Charlotte Mills, 16-year-old daughter of the slain choir singer, in an exclusive statement made to the I. N. S. today.

The divulging of this and other little intimate secrets told to her by her mother was called forth by Mrs. Hall's declaration in a recent interview that she believed her husband still loved and was faithful to her.

By CHARLOTTE MILLS
NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Nov. 4.—For three days I have debated with myself whether or not I should comment upon Mrs. Hall's bold assertions to the reporters that she had never suspected anything between Dr. Hall and my mother; that she was ignorant of what had apparently been going on and that she still believed that he loved her and was faithful to her. I say I debated with myself because there are some things that even a grief-stricken daughter wishes to hide, and the little intimate details that my mother told me before she was murdered are some of these things. But I have decided that this is no time to consider my personal feeling, or even the sacred memory of the things my mother told me from time to time; that I must not consider my heart aches and pain but bare the little secrets of my heart before the new light that it sheds and the good it may eventually accomplish.

My former Sunday school teacher, Mrs. Hall, was not, as she said, unsuspicious of my mother. Her suspicions, from my mother's personal observations, dated as far back as February.

There are many instances and little acts to show Mrs. Hall was suspicious and jealous. I shall give a few that my mother told me.

Before Mrs. Hall's suspicions were aroused, she and my mother were the best of friends. Though in different social circles they were intimate and Mrs. Hall frequently used to take my mother to her personal friends. But some time before this terrible tragedy, Mrs. Hall suddenly became cold and distant. My mother, at that time, remarked on the changed attitude and I remember distinctly.

On the day they went to Lake Hopatcong my mother returned home and told me that she had become ill and had been forced to lie down. "Dr. Hall bent down over me and asked how I felt," she said. "Just then I happened to look at Mrs. Hall and I was startled by the angry look in her eyes."

Another instance which I recollect clearly because it hurt my mother so, was at an affair at the Evergreens, the Episcopal home for the aged. A number of people had gathered to entertain the aged inmates and my mother walked over to Mrs. Hall as usual, only to have the rector's wife deliberately turn her back to her in an insulting fashion. It hurt mother, and I remember it because she remarked that night: "I don't know what ails Mrs. Hall lately."

One time my mother went out to the Evergreens with Dr. Hall to take some things to the home. On the way something happened to a tire and mother helped Dr. Hall while he fixed it by handing him some tools. A couple of weeks later while mother and Mrs. Hall were driving, Mrs. Hall turned and said: "Eleanor, suppose something happened to the car, you could fix it, couldn't you?"

"No," said my mother. "Oh yes, you could," returned Mrs. Hall in a peculiar tone, which my mother commented on when she returned home.

These are a few of the instances which arouse doubts in me in view of recent occurrences. There were other times when Mrs. Hall refused to go riding if my mother was present but insisted upon going when mother went out with Dr. Hall. My mother knew that Mrs. Hall was suspicious of her; Mrs. Hall's statement to the contrary is untrue.

And then her statement that Dr. Hall still loved her and was faithful to her: The truth of the matter is that Dr. Hall never loved her. Dr. Hall himself said so. There was no happiness in that large house on Nichols because there was no love from their marriage.

Mother knew it. I knew it. And many others knew it. Dr. Hall told mother that he did not love Mrs. Hall and that he had married her against his wishes to please his mother, who insisted upon it. On his way to England on his honeymoon he first saw the full significance of what he had done.

"I left our stateroom and went on deck," he told mother, "and looked at the heavens studded with stars. At that moment I felt what I wish no mortal ever to feel, and I raised my hands on high and cried: 'God! what a coward I am to have married without love.'"

These are some of the things mother told me, and I cannot forget them, though they are so little in themselves, yet so significant in the light of Mrs. Hall's statements, and I wonder why my former Sunday school teacher said things when I know and she knows that they are not true.

sling of all dogs will go out to all parts of the county next week.

Persons who have been subjected to infection by the bite of a dog, whether mad or not, are urged to report to the local health officer for treatment. It is pointed out that the period of incubation is anywhere from six days to ten months, and the disease may develop at any time within that period after the bite.

The five year old son of Russell McConnell, near McGuire's grove is the latest victim of mad dog bite. He is taking treatment from Dr. J. G. Smalles, having been bitten Tuesday. Earl Handles, Jackson, is taking treatment from Dr. T. W. Lear. Among the recent reported cases of rabies in dogs are those of the Richereek dog near Warsaw and the Van Vorhes dog in Adams.

City Health Officer Glenn Smith will probably take the subject up with the city council at the next meeting, November 13.

ILL-FATED 'ISLAND QUEEN' AND OTHER STEAMERS BURN

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 4.—The Island Queen, river steamer whose upper deck collapsed and injured fifty persons during the river pageant at Point Pleasant last spring when President Harding visited this city, was destroyed by fire today as she lay at her wharf on the river front. Her sister steamers, the Morning Star, and the Tacoma, another excursion boat, also were destroyed together with two wharf boats owned by the Coney Island Co. and the Green Line Co.

A tug made fast a line to the Chris Green and towed it blazing across the river to the Kentucky shore where the Newport fire department succeeded in salvaging a part of the fireswept craft.

None of the boats were under steam when the fire which is said to have originated from gasoline which was being used on one of them to clean an automobile, broke out, so that the flames quickly jumped from one craft to the other and to the big shoreboats which serve them as wharves.

The heat from the burning boats was intense, driving the large crowds which assembled far back up the river bank. The property loss is estimated at $500,000 by rivermen, who say that the fire is the largest in the history of the river district at Cincinnati.

LECTURE COURSE AT GRACE CHURCH BEGINS NOV. 21

Owing to the success the women of Grace M. E. church had last season with their lecture course programs, they are scheduling the Redpath People's lecture course at the church this season.

There are five lecture course numbers on the season's program. They are the Di Giorgio orchestra; Selma Lenhart, reader; the Harp Ensemble company, and Granville Jones, and Elwood T. Bailey, lecturers.

The opening number is the Di Giorgio Concert orchestra, which appears at Grace M. E. church on Tuesday night, November 21. This musical organization is comprised of members of the Di Giorgio family. For twenty-five years, the father, Signor T. Di Giorgio has been an orchestra conductor and instructor. The musicians include the two daughters, Adeline and Fortunata, who are capable performers on a variety of instruments, and the mother, Signora, and Miss Ella May Minert, the fifth member of the company. The program which this musical company renders is calculated to please all classes of patrons. There will be played xylophone, string quartet, and Alpine horn diversions.

The second number on the course will be Miss Selma Lenhart, reader of plays. She will appear at Grace M. E. church on December 12. Miss Lenhart is said to be a successful exponent of dramatic art. She claims that she is capable, after two days' study, of giving a story that requires an hour and a half for reproduction. Newspaper clippings say this is true in the case of "Erstwhile Susan," the delightfully human play which she has recently added to her repertoire.

The third number of the course comes on January 1, New Year's Day. The Harp Ensemble company appears on that date. This organization is composed of women. It is a quintet. Three harps, a cello, and violin are used. The ensemble singing of the company to their own stringed accompaniment, is one of the delightful features of the entire program.

The popular lecturer, Granville Jones, will be here on January 25. He is known as a thorough student of present-day social phenomena, and his messages are said to be based on careful observation and conscientious investigation. He is considered unique, original, logical and humorous. A slight strain of Indian blood in his veins is plainly discernible in his features. His lecture themes include: "The Creed of Democracy," "Feeding of the Hungry," and "The Siege and Fall of the Alamo."

The last, but not least on the Redpath lecture course program is Elwood T. Bailey, who will lecture at Grace M. E. church on February 1. For several years he was engaged in welfare work, studying social, economic and industrial conditions. The Bailey lectures are said to be not only inspirational and character building, but filled with humor.

Mrs. Gibson left town early yesterday, returning about midnight in the company of an elderly woman, that to be her mother. Beyond saying that the newcomer was not her mother, Mrs. Gibson maintained silence as to the woman's identity or her movements yesterday.

It was learned today that Mrs. Gibson, in her statement to the authorities said the woman present when Hall and Mrs. Mills were killed wore no hat and had very light hair.

MOSLEMS OF INDIA ARE AROUSED OVER FALL OF SULTAN

ALLAHABAD, India, Nov. 4.—The order of the Turkish Nationalist Assembly at Angora abolishing the Turkish Sultanate, is causing consternation among Indian Moslems, according to reports received here from various quarters here today.

Indian leaders said they believed this action by Angora, would lead to a coolness of sentiment toward the Turkish Nationalist movement. Some radical Hindu newspapers go so far as to suggest the formation of an Indian legion to make war against the followers of Mustafa Kemal Pasha.

FLYERS SMASH RECORDS WITH 2,060-MI. HOP

Set New Marks For Distance And Time In Air; Off For Dayton

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—All distance airplane flight records were shattered by Lieuts. John A. MacReady and Oakley Kelley in their dash of 2,060 miles from San Diego to Indianapolis, officials of the army air service informed the I. N. S. this afternoon. The longest previous flight on record was that made on June 14, 1919, from St. Johns, Newfoundland, to Clifden, Ireland, by Capt. John Alcock and Sir A. W. Brown. They made 1,936 miles in 16 hours.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 4.—The T-2, giant monoplane, which was forced to land near here at 9 o'clock this morning after traveling 2,060 miles from San Diego, Calif., enroute on what was to be a non-stop flight to Mincola, Long Island, hopped off again at 10:50 this morning headed for Dayton, O.

A water leak caused the landing of the T-2 shortly after 9 o'clock today.

Efforts to fix the trouble proved futile.

The fliers were 400 miles out of San Diego when the trouble developed. "We covered 2,060 miles in twenty-five hours," Lieut. Kelly said. "Our trouble developed after we had covered about 400 miles. We expect to take off again for Mincola as soon as the trouble is repaired."

"It became apparent that we would have to land about 100 miles before we reached Ft. Benjamin Harrison."

Neither Lieut. Kelly nor Lieut. MacReady had a moment's relaxation since the beginning of the trip.

With the hardest part of the trip successfully negotiated as far as atmospheric conditions were concerned, the aviators appeared greatly chagrined because of the apparent defeat of their epoch-making flight with victory seemingly within their grasp.

The last hour of the flight accomplished the least in the way of distance. The aviators left Terre Haute at 7:52 a. m., and did not reach Fort Benjamin Harrison until after nine o'clock.

The trip, thus far had stood out as a record breaker. Every effort was being made to repair the damage but when it became apparent that a forced landing was necessary, Lieuts. Kelley and MacReady with two records to their credit, that of staying in the air the longest of any aviators and for distance, made for the Fort Benjamin Harrison landing field. The last 100 miles were the hardest, the aviators said. They intended following the National highway, which parallels the Penna. railroad to Richmond and Dayton, but deviated from the course about fifteen miles west of Indianapolis and flew over the north edge of the city and army post.

DAYTON, Ohio, Nov. 4.—Lieuts. J. A. MacReady and Oakley Kelley are fast asleep in their beds this afternoon.

They arrived at McCook field from Indianapolis where their transcontinental flight was abruptly ended by engine trouble this morning, on the verge of exhaustion.

They climbed from the borrowed plane into a waiting automobile and were driven at once to their homes. They were covered with grease and grime of a grueling grind and needed rest badly.

Both were happy in the knowledge that they had established a new cross country record, the T-2 having covered 2,060 miles in 25 hours and 17 minutes.

They were congratulated by McCook field officers as they were whisked away to their homes.

To the Citizens of Coshocton County

Carmi Thompson stated in his Bellaire speech a few days ago that if he were elected he would cut out the state levy that produced $1,500,000. The only levy that produces that amount is the 15 hundredths mills for weak school districts.

The law providing for a direct state levy of 15 hundredths mill for weak school districts was violently opposed in the last General Assembly by the city of Cleveland. Thompson is voicing that sentiment. Cleveland capitalists own much of the mining stock of the State Aid coal counties and much of the wealth of those counties is shipped into Cleveland. The hill counties do not get any funds from taxation on the above. If they did they would not need State Aid.

Thompson did not come out openly and use the term State Aid Fund because he was afraid of the reaction. He thinks he can make the people believe he is going to reduce the state levy but does not want the hill counties to know it. If Thompson is elected and carries that statment into effect, hundreds of schools in Southern Ohio will be closed. It will be remembered that a large part of Thompson's big campaign fund for the nomination came from the large coal operators of Cleveland and the cutting down of the state levy of 15 hundredths mills for weak school districts would benefit these millionaire coal operators materially.

IF THIS LEVY WAS CUT OUT AS MR. THOMPSON PROMISES, MANY SCHOOLS IN COSHOCTON COUNTY WOULD BE VERY BADLY CRIPPLED.

LAST YEAR THE SCHOOLS OF THE CITY OF COSHOCTON RECEIVED ABOUT $16,000 FROM THIS LEVY; AND WE NEED MORE THIS YEAR.

THE FOLLOWING SCHOOL DISTRICTS RECEIVED STATE AID AND IF ELEMENATED WOULD BE COMPELLED TO CLOSE THEIR SCHOOLS:

Thin? Run-down? Sure way to get right weight

Increase Your Red-Blood-Cells. That's the Sure Way! S. S. S. Builds Blood-Cells; This Means Strength!

Do you know why insurance companies refuse to insure a great many men because they are under weight? Simply because to be under weight often proves low fighting-power in the body. It often means you are minus nerve-power, minus red-cells in your blood, minus health, minus energy, minus vitality. It is serious to be minus, but the moment you increase the number of your red-blood-cells, you begin to become plus. That's why S. S. S. since 1826 has meant to thousands of underweight men and women, a plus in their strength. Healthy cheeks fill out. You stop being a calamity-looker. You inspire confidence. Your body fills to the point of power. Your flesh becomes firmer, the age lines that come from thinness disappear. You look younger, firmer, happier, and you feel it, too, all over your body. More red-blood-cells! S. S. S. will build them. Ladies and gentlemen, a peppy, bony face doesn't make you look very important or pretty, does it? Take S. S. S. It contains only pure vegetable medicinal ingredients. S. S. S. is sold at all drug stores in two sizes. The larger size bottle is the more economical.

S.S.S. makes you feel like yourself again.

PRINCESS HERMINE ACCUSED OF 'VAMPING' EX-KAISER BY HER POISON-TONGUED FOES

(By S. D. WEYER. Copyright, 1922, by I. N. S.) DOORN, Holland (Nov. 4)—Princess Hermine of Reuss, who will be married tomorrow to the former German kaiser, comes to Doorn today not as a happy bride, but with bitterness in her soul. Her lips will smile as she greets her new lord and master and receives the congratulations of the entourage at the former war lord's castle, but there will be blackness in her heart. The intensity of the princess' bitterness is equalled only by her determination to get even with those who made this day of joy one in which she feels that the whole world is against her. Hermine—to put it succinctly—came to Doorn with the defiant will to win and punish. In a two-hour interview in the drawing room of her castle at Saabor, in Silesia, she had poured out her heart to the correspondent but begged that her revelations and her declarations "to get even" not be printed until she left Germany and arrived in Holland.

Consequently the interview can be given the public today. The correspondent asked the princess: "What about that mysterious trunk which is said to have arrived in Doorn the other day? It was said to contain the crown which the former kaiser is personally to place upon your head."

A bitter, jerky laugh was the first reaction from this question. For a moment the princess struggled with herself and then, no longer able to master the emotion which repeatedly thwarted the interview threatened to overwhelm her, she arose and joined her hands high above her head. Gazing upward at the ceiling with an air of despair, she burst into tears. Then, amidst convulsive sobs, she exclaimed: "So that is the latest lie? I suppose they want to make me out a vain, ambitious creature. What is it you call it in the United States? Oh yes, 'ramped the kaiser.' A crown! A crown of thorns, perhaps. They have already poisoned my wedding. They have given me a foretaste of hell upon earth."

Asked whom she meant by "they," the princess gradually calmed down and exclaimed: "I mean those who, for selfish or sickly sentimental reasons are opposed to our marriage. They have tried to prevent it by every conceivable means but most notably by foul slander and diabolical intrigues. And, mind you—such coward did not dare utter a peep in the presence of the kaiser, but took out all their wrath and venom upon me."

"Yes, among those who fought and humiliated me are some of the ex-kaiser's own relatives but they are not the worst. They are fighting and have been doing so more or less in the open."

"Chief opposition has come from schemers who felt that they would be 'cheated of their spoils' or feared for their jobs."

Princess Hermine's lips tightened. Her eyes flashed hatred while she doubled up her jeweled hands into two small but angry little fists.

"The worst of all—the meanest of all—are the Camarilla," she snapped between clenched teeth. "Listen"—she leaned forward tensely, her eyes hard and penetrating—"The ex-kaiser today is just as much isolated as he was through his reign in Germany. He is isolated by a cordon of courtiers who frown upon him and play their own game all the time. They are parasites. They live upon him. They do not really serve him. They never tell their real opinion except behind his back."

Special precautions have been taken by the local commandant of the Dutch gendarmes for the protection of the ex-kaiser's castle and all the principals and guests and Democrats who are opposed to the extreme measures of the other group. The elections tomorrow will serve to show to what extent this new alignment is taking shape. "As to the immediate effects of the elections they should not be important unless the Republican majority in congress should be overthrown. I do not, however, expect such an event."

"After all," continued Mr. Babsen, "most of us business men worry a great deal more over politics than we should. Everybody today is looking to Washington for a present. Nine tenths of all the important bills before congress this year were designed to help some one group—usually at the expense of the others. Farmer and labor demands, railroad financing, state roads, soldiers' bonus and the tariff fight are a few examples. This stampede to the government for assistance is one of the pestilences which always follow a war. The same mania developed after the Civil war. From 1865 to 1870 bankers and business men spent more energy lobbying in congress than developing their own business. The government must mix into business in war time, it is hard to get out of it after the war is over. Eventually people will realize that you can't take out of the government more than you put into it. For the present, however, the situation presents a serious danger—not to those who fail to get assistance, but to those who succeed!"

charges are increased on no safer basis than legislation, it is not a business in which to risk your money. Business concerns, like individuals, get their strength from fighting their own battles. Too much protection is far more dangerous than too little.

"Remember that Congress is governed by the law of action and reaction. At present, legislation is running toward government subsidies and support. The further this movement goes, however, the more drastic will be the subsequent reaction. The more congress does for individual business interests today, the more some other Congress will take away from these interests later. Hence, when looking for an industry in which to invest your money, pick the one which will have least to fear from the caprice of politics. Legislation may give a temporary boost to securities, but the long swing upward must be based upon something more substantial. "Any concern which is prospering mainly by the grace of congress is an unsafe risk. The worst concerns today are devoting their energy to building up their own organizations."

"This factor marks a sharp distinction between the railroad today. Under the Federal Commerce law the roads have the privilege of calling upon the Government for assistance in their financing. Many investors have looked upon this as a favorable argument. You will notice, however, that the railroad which stand best on the quotation board have very few "government obligations" in their balance sheets. The only kind of loan to put your money on is one that will stand on its own bottom. Perhaps the others will come out all right, but the railroad in which I am interested are now adopting efficient business methods instead of depending upon government aid. In choosing railroad securities, my advice is to let someone else speculate as to what the government will or won't do."

"The same applies to industrial securities. At the moment every one is much exercised over the new tariff rates. Some industries have secured greater protection than others. In the long run, however, the business which receives the greatest tariff protection may not be the best investment, if its operating costs and overhead

MRS. HALL DROVE TO PHILLIPS FARM, WITNESSES SAY

NEW BRUNSWICK, Nov. 4—Investigation of the murder of Dr. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. James Mills was virtually at a standstill today. Mrs. Hall had said in her interview with the press that she had not been on the Phillips farm (where the murders were committed) since her childhood. It was reported today, however, that detectives had found witnesses who said they saw Mrs. Hall, bareheaded, driving near the Phillips farm in her runabout upon one or more occasions before the murder.

"The Auld Step-Mother Soon Found Them."

THE TWINS

GENTLE RAIN and Mountain Mist were twins, a brother and a sister, whose own mother was dead, but who had a cruel and vindictive step-mother.

When the father, however, was at home the wicked woman pretended to be very fond of her step-children, and ever, as his work took him afar, and on these occasions the stepmother scolded and starved and even whipped the poor children most unmercifully.

The father had to make at one time a very long journey that would consume many months so he bade his wife and children farewell, feeling satisfied far beyond their childish strength. Nor would she give them enough to eat, dry crusts and water being all she would allow them, and she counselled them at daybreak so as to begin the day's drudgery betimes, and not until long after the night grew dark were they permitted to go to bed.

At last Gentle Rain said to his sister:

"Sister, little sister, let us run away. I am tired of being scolded and ill-treated, when we try so hard to please our step-mother."

"Yes," answered Mountain Mist, "let us go. I am tired, too, of all this unkindness."

That very day the children did run away and took refuge on the side of a mountain peak. The cruel step-mother, however, soon found them, and drove them back home, giving them each a severe whipping.

The next day the little boy and girl ran away again and sought refuge in a valley a long distance away. The step-mother searched for them a long time and at last discovered them at last. Seeing so many raindrops springing the way, wherever Gentle Rain and Mountain Mist went, they were attending to the lake.

On the morning when Gentle Rain looked over the plain he saw a beautiful sheet of clear water sparkling and dancing in the rays of the sun.

"Mountain Mist!" he called, "arise and let us go and swim a while."

The little girl was delighted with the lake and a merry time the two children had playing in the refreshing and invigorating waters.

The children then plucked vegetables and cultivated the trees, and the whole place became a fertile and attractive garden.

The step-mother was still searching, but she had found them in their new abode. The father of the children, however, was very kind and was very much pleased when he discovered that his wife had neglected his poor and helpless children.

So he took them back to your place and gave them a good home and a good name, and they were not at all

THE ROSE

MANY and many a long year ago there lived in a far-off land a beautiful princess who was so very handsome that no one could compare with her.

One day while wandering by the sea, she began playing with the little waves that came dancing upon the sandy beach, as if trying to cover the tiny feet of the Princess, while she retreated when they came too near, and pleased at her return, and she spent the rest of her days working as hard as ever she had made the poor children work, for that was her just punishment.

And Gentle Rain and Mountain Mist lived happily with their father, whose long journey being over, was never obliged to leave them again.

not allow such a state of affairs to continue, so the Sun was commanded to resume his journey immediately.

Of course, he had to obey, and taking a last frantic embrace, the lovelorn Sun tore himself away and reluctantly went on his way.

Then to put temptation forever away from the Sun, the Lord of the Universe changed the beautiful Princess into a flower, and a flower that was quite as lovely as the Princess had been as a maiden.

But the Sun did not forget his beloved and every day shines down upon the rose, which blushes all rosy red when it feels his rays, and bashfully hangs its head when the Sun becomes too ardent in his regard.

Ever since that memorable time, however, when the Sun fell in love with the beautiful Princess, have we had roses in the world.

THE SEASONS.

Dear Mother Nature has four girls
Whose lives are spent in dizzy whirls.
Their names are Summer, Autumn Spring
(She hears returning birdies sing).
And Winter, that the children call
Because of Christmas—best of all.
Discarded clothes they do not spurn,
But wear each other's frocks in turn.
Just as each earthly mother knows
Those girls are very hard on clothes.
Spring draws her dresses in the brook
Until a perfect sight they look!
But what a lot of jolly fun!
Then Summer fades them in the sun,
While Autumn in mad romp and play
Whips hers to tattered ribbons gay.
But Mother Nature does not mind
To have her frolic in the wind;
At rag; poor Winter much demurs,
So Nature gives her ermine furs!

The Waves are Mother Ocean's girls,
With teasing curls
I wonder will their mamma fret
Because they art their hair all wet?
Or because they run awa:

Perhaps they flee
Because like me
They know they'll get no jam for tea!

LIMA MAN FREED AFTER ATTACK ON WIFE'S COMPANION

LIMA, Nov. 4.—Harry Ream, 39, 413 west High-st. acquitted in police court on a charge of attacking Lee Stumbaugh, 49, whom he testified he surprised with Mrs. Ream in a room at his home, will have to prove his fitness to care for his three minor children, before they will be given into his custody, J. ing, counsel began closing arguments early today. Kaminski, the last defense witness on the stand, denied he was one of the leaders in the mine march, but declared he was forced under threat to accompany the marchers. He said he sought to escape several times on the way to Cliftonville, but was forced back into line by armed men and named Steve Lapero as the man who directed formation of the miners' army. Prior to the charge Kaminski said he had been at Akron, Ohio, and returned to Avella only a day before the battle. He was unarmed.

After the battle he fled to Avella, then went to Canton, Ohio.

U. S. AND BRITAIN TO APOLOGIZE FOR UNFRIENDLY ACTS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Instead of cancellation of indebtedness, Great Britain and the United States will soon engage in "cancellation of apologies" it appeared today.

The United States is confronted with the unpleasant task of apologizing to Great Britain for the over zealousness of the prohibition navy in seizing the steamer Emerald and its cargo of Scotch liquor outside the three mile limit. Great Britain is confronted with the equally unpleasant task of apologizing to the United States for its summary action in cancelling the credentials of two American consular officers at New Castle, resulting in the closing of the American consulate there. The British charged the Americans were working undue discrimination against their shipping. An exchange of "regrets," it was said today probably would close both incidents.

FIGURES IN AMAZING LOVE TANGLE

George E. Eye and Mrs. Rebecca Garnet

George E. Eye, an eighteen-year-old youth, of Cairns, Maine, is shown here with his sixty-three-year-old grandmother, Mrs. Rebecca Louise Craig Eye Garnet, who left her bedridden husband and married her own grandson in St. Stephen, New Brunswick. When the officiating clergyman, W. C. H. Goucher, of St. Stephen, learned of their relationship he rushed to their home, seized the marriage certificate, tore it up and declared the marriage invalid.

BOY SCOUT NEWS BY HAMMILL

THE MAYOR'S OFFICE.
W. S. Tish, Mayor
Nov. 1st, 1922.
Rr. Jack Hammill, Scout Executive.
Dear Sir: It is a great pleasure and a personal pride for me as mayor of our city, to extend to you congratulations and many thanks for the good work done by the Boy Scouts and their leaders in keeping Main-st clear of automobiles on the evening of Oct. 31st.
It is sufficient proof of the ability and discipline of the organization. An organization of Boy Scouts like you have is in my estimation one of the essential needs of every community.
I will always feel grateful to the Boy Scouts and at any time I shall be in need of temporary assistance I shall feel free to call on you to help out.

I thank you.
W. S. TISH, Mayor.

The twenty-five boys who one night last summer at camp went down the stony trail of the mystic order of the Cimmon Circle are to meet at the wigwam of the big chief, 230 Elm-st, Sunday at two o'clock.

WOLF CUBS

Wolf Cubs will assemble at the M. E. church at four o'clock Monday for a hike with the old wolf: Akela.

TROOP TWO

Troop Two is on the lookout for two assistant scoutmasters. Karl Wendt, a scout who has long shown exceptional ability along scouting lines, has just recently been appointed Senior Patrol Leader.

TROOP FOUR

Troop Four reports three new members. Fifteen scouts attended the feed given at the church Thursday. One tenderfoot scout passed all his tests last week.

TROOP FIVE

Regular weekly hike was held Friday night.

TROOP SIX

The Holy Name Troop was organized last night with twenty-seven scouts present. The scout executive organized the troop then turned it over to William McManus, the scoutmaster. Howard Cassleman, Joseph Salrin and James Gannon were appointed patrol leaders. Edward Ream was elected scribe and Lawrence Foster, Joseph Hallsy and Jack Bently committee on activities.

Troop Six has organized a football team and wants games with other troops. See Patrol Leader Salrin or Scoutmaster McManus.
Panther patrol won every one of the inter-patrol contests but the Raven patrol is getting all set for next Friday.

TROOP ONE, WARSAW
Troop One, Warsaw, held a parents' meeting last week to talk over plans for the future. It was well attended.

MOTHER IS KILLED BUT SAVES BABY WHEN AUTO SKIDS

CLEVELAND, Nov. 4.—Mrs. Dorothy Rosenberry, 26, of Geneva, Ohio, is dead today, but in dying she saved the life of her six-week-old baby. An automobile driven by her husband, Russell R. Rosenberry, 29, skidded into a ditch and overturned between Northfield and Akron late yesterday. Mrs. Rosenberry was taken from the wrecked car with her neck broken, but the baby, protected by her arms, was not even slightly hurt. The family party had been enroute to Winfield, and had expected to spend the night at the home of Mrs. George Sprenger, of Canton, a sister of Mrs. Rosenberry. Rosenberry was not seriously injured.

FUTURE WARS TO BE FOUGHT IN AIR SAYS BONAR LAW

LEEDS, Nov. 4.—Premier Andrew Bonar Law revealed in a speech today that he believes future wars will be determined in the air.
"The center of our safety has changed," said the premier. "I think the air will be more dangerous than the seas in future warfare."
The premier defended the ability of his Tory government and denied that former Premier Lloyd George had been unseated by intrigues. He said the government intended to give the Anglo-Irish peace treaty a fair trial, altho the subject is a difficult one.
"I would like to see the workers get a larger share of the product of their industry if it could done without drying up the springs of industry."

Section 5978 of the General Code of The State of Ohio, provides that, "Every Saturday afternoon of each year shall be a one-half legal holiday for all purposes, beginning at twelve o'clock noon and ending at twelve o'clock midnight."

If the taxpayers of Coshocton County disapprove the observance of this half-holiday the Democratic Candidates pledge themselves to keep their offices open all day every Saturday.

DODGE BROTHERS MOTOR CAR

The evenness of performance so often remarked in Dodge Brothers Motor Cars is due, in no small part, to the thoroughness with which each unit is inspected during the process of manufacture and assembly.

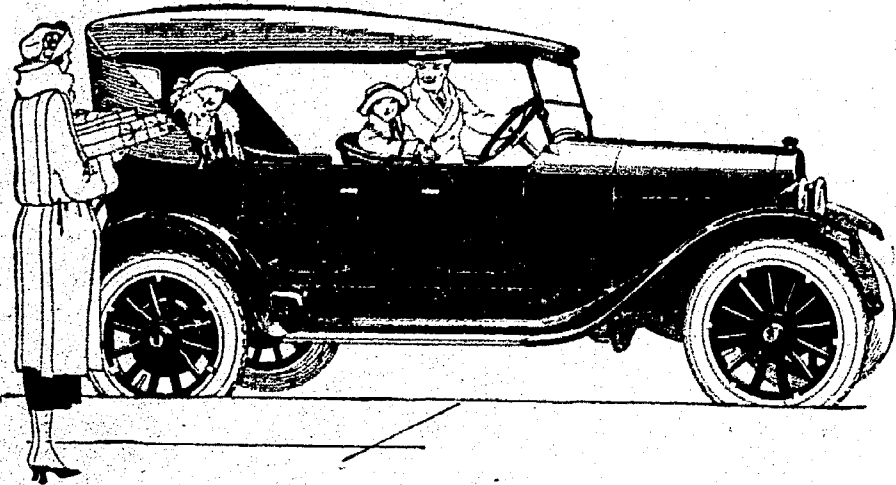

A trained staff of 800 experts is employed in this work alone, and approximately 5285 individual inspections are made on each car.

So exacting and rigid are the standards applied to these inspections that the slightest variation either in workmanship or material is instantly discovered and rejected.

Dodge Brothers are almost over-scrupulous in their constant aim to make each car as sound and perfect as is humanly possible.

ANDY GUMP HAS NOTHING ON "DOC"

At least one Holmes-co candidate has his office clinched. Dr. W. B. Middleton had the job of coroner "wished" on him by the Democrats at the primaries. Prior to this, Holmes-co had no coroner and no one was nominated on the Republican ticket.

However, tho he has no opposition, the doctor, in keeping with the general spirit of the present campaign feels he should make some statement. He apologizes for not having conducted a more vigorous campaign, but states that he will make rousing speeches in every city of 5,000 population or more over the county during the closing days of the campaign.

"I am running on my service record," he says. "As a veteran of the War of 1812, Mexican, Civil, Spanish-American, and World wars, I expect to receive the voters' vote. Things look bright for me. Moreover, if I am elected, you'll see an awful change in a year. In my capacity as coroner, I shall reduce taxes, remove all unnecessary officials, clean up the courthouse, and have the weeds pulled from the front yard."

The doctor expresses regret at not having an opponent, as he has a number of choice epithets to hurl at any individual having the temerity to run against him.

In view of these statements, it is fairly safe to predict that Dr. W. B. Middleton will be the next coroner of Holmes-co.

MILLERSBURG WINS FROM COSHOCTON HI

Outplaying, outfighting, and outsmarting their ancient foe, Millersburg high school Saturday afternoon sent Coshocton to a 31-0 defeat. In spite of injuries recently sustained by Captain Uhl and Raymond Barnhart, star backfield men, the locals were superior in every department of the game to the Coshocton gridgers.

With one exception, every point scored by Oxenrider's men was earned. In the second quarter, Millersburg's quarterback on receiving the ball, failed to properly hand it to the back who was supposed to carry it on that particular play. The quarter hesitated, and then shot around the opposite end from that on which the play had been planned, for a touchdown. This was the only touchdown scored by the locals which might be characterized as unearned.

The opposition tightened in the second half, but Millersburg was at no time in danger, though only one touchdown was scored in this half, this in the third quarter.

Next Friday, Millersburg will take on Orrville for the second time this season. Orrville holds a 2-0 victory as a result of an earlier game, which the locals seek to avenge. Early betting on this game favors Millersburg to win, as the out-of-town boys were outclassed in the previous game, but were lucky in securing the "breaks" of the game.

CHAMBER TACKLES STUBBORN PROBLEMS

A genuine desire to attack and solve some of Millersburg's most perplexing problems was evidenced in one of the "peppiest" meetings in some time when the Chamber of Commerce met Thursday night in Agricultural hall. Housing and lighting problems were concentrated on and it is believed that interest has reached such a pitch that action of some sort will be taken in the near future.

Representatives of local rubber factories were present and told of conditions among their employes. They stated that it is extremely difficult to secure houses for rent, or even to buy houses. A committee was appointed to investigate the situation. It is said that men of means are looking for more profitable investments than the building of houses for rent.

The committee on electric lights had not completed its report, but a discussion was held on the exorbitant prices which local people are said to be paying for light. It is thought that this matter will be taken up for more serious consideration and action at the next meeting.

DIPHTHERIA IS FATAL TO CHILD

Leroy Yoder, 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Yoder, who live two miles north of Denton, died of diphtheria, early Friday morning.

The child was of Amish descent and had been suffering from diphtheria for sometime, but had not been regarded as in a serious condition until a day before its death. The funeral was held privately Friday.

FIRST NUMBER ON THE LECTURE COURSE

The opening number of the lecture course which is being conducted under the auspices of the local high school with A. C. Ponce in charge was well received by about 450 people at the opera house Thursday night. Miss Gladys Anderson, a harpist, and Miss Lucille Brogan, a reader, provided the program. The second number will be given December 15.

FINED FOR KEEPING GIRL FROM SCHOOL

That he needed her at home was the excuse Manassas Weaver of Walnutcreek-lp gave for keeping his 14-year-old daughter out of school. Weaver was brot before Judge Estill, of probate court Saturday, by Deputy Sheriff Close. The court decided that the excuse was not valid and Weaver was fined $20 and costs.

FOOTBALL SQUAD GETS A WORKOUT

A bunch of Coach Oxenrider's proteges, after walloping Coshocton 32-0 Saturday, received another workout about 7 a. m. in pushing a heavy touring car up a hill about four miles south of Bloomfield. The party became stranded when engine trouble was encountered, while enroute home. The coach assisted his men in the heavy work and the group arrived in town late Saturday night.

IS SERIOUSLY ILL

Sheriff Robert Henderson is critically ill after several days suffering from kidney trouble. Several local doctors were in consultation late Friday afternoon and it was thought that an operation would be necessary.

Mr. Henderson was taken sick Wednesday, but was so much improved Thursday that he left his bed. A serious relapse followed the next day.

PLAN NIGHT SCHOOL

A night school will be opened at Oak Hill (Bumble bee) school December 1, by Mr. and Mrs. Walling Corwin of the local high school. Mr. Corwin will be in charge of a course on feeds and feeding and Mrs. Corwin will teach sewing to women who wish to enroll.

Gray Jersey Cloth With Coral Color Embroidery

By MARY BROOKS PICKEN

JERSEY cloth is delightful when developed in a simple, artistic design. In the blouse dress illustrated, the distinction is attained entirely through the novel use of coral color in contrast with the gray. Embroidery in this color is used on the collar, sleeves, and imitation pockets. The collar lining, the vest and the sleeves and pocket facings are of soft, coral silk.

The blouse is plain and has a long-waist effect. The plainness of the skirt is overcome through the use of four separate pane pieces. Unsurpassed except by the body given by doubling the material adjustable cushion brims make the most becoming and serviceable of knock-about hats. Developed in matching color duvetyne, the brim is shaped into the crown in front with a thin gun-metal quill thrust through it in smart Cavalier of feet.

bridge-st. Miss Matter and Miss Lois Rinehart were schoolmates at Oberlin College.

The Otterbein Sisters, including the four districts of the United Brethren church met Friday evening, at the church, for the purpose of electing officers. Mrs. E. Tannahill, 1254 East Main-st. and two granddaughters, Margaret and Jean, have left for Chicago, Ill., where they were called on account of the serious illness of Mrs. Tannahill's daughter, Hazel.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Rose, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gamble, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Stillinger, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wizenberg and A. O. Hale, all of Coshocton, motored to the home of Charles Gamble, near Otsego, Friday evening and enjoyed a barbecue.

Announcement has been received of the birth of a daughter Friday to Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Fiercrock (Anna Wells) at their home in Follansbee, West Va. The infant has been named Irene Kathryn.

Y. W. C. A. NEWS

Don't forget the luncheon, Monday noon at the Y. rooms, which marks the opening of World Fellowship week which is to be observed in our Association this week. As its guests the committee has asked representatives of each club in the City Federation and the Blue Triangle Federation, as well as the Rotary, Kiwanis and Young Business Men's club, and the men on our Advisory Committee. Miss Helen Avery, of Zanesville, will talk for ten minutes on the Association World program.

All girls in the Federation, as well as any others who will so kindly help us out are asked to gather at the Y. rooms, Monday evening, at 7 o'clock, to practice our songs, stunts, etc., for election night at the Sixth Street theatre. Several of our reliable singers will not be able to attend and we are depending on all those who possibly can to help us out. By the way, be sure and save Tuesday night for us.

On Tuesday night the Club and Activities Committee and the House Committee are arranging for supper to be served in the rooms, beginning at 5 o'clock. The committee in charge will serve hot coffee, sandwiches, home-made pies and doughnuts. Many people may want to drop in there for a lunch in order to remain down in the town for the election returns. The girls will also serve candy, pop corn balls, doughnuts, sandwiches and drinks, in the theatre and on the street. Proceeds from this will be placed in the permanent home fund.

LaFolots, make your reservations as soon as possible for the supper party Wednesday evening, at the rooms. A special program will be heard for that evening and we are urging all girls to turn up at once.

On account of the election Tuesday night, the Board meeting has been postponed until a later date.

A meeting for the House Committee has been called for Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Y. W. rooms.

A Many-Ha-Ha supper party at 6 o'clock is on the program for Thursday night. Of course the Many-Ha-Ha know just what this means—a good spread and a delightfully entertaining evening. Make your reservations at the earliest convenient time.

TREATY PROVISIO DISPUTED

Island Empire Wants Former Residence Of Chi-

PEKING, Nov. 4. — Bitter controversy has arisen between the Chinese and Japanese committees for the return of public property in Shantung. The Chinese allege that

Another Minister Slain By A Woman

known as "The Bishop of All Outdoors," was slain in his home in Havre, Mont., by Mrs. Marguerite Carleton, who killed herself. Mystery surrounds the motive.

the Japanese demands are preposterous and refuse to yield further.
The question in dispute is the provision of the Shantung Treaty, section 2, in which the Japanese reserve the right to retain sufficient buildings for their consulate and such additional ones as are "required of the Japanese community, including public schools, shrines and hospitals."

For the consulate the Japanese demand of the Tsingtao Governor, have demanded the former residence of the Chinese Governor, which is considered the finest building in the city. They also want the courthouse for their consular courts, a special residence for the Consul-General, a residence for the Consul and for each of the three Vice-Consuls and adequate housing for the two under Consuls, a dozen or more clerks, fifty police and special quarters for the police officials. The Chinese say that there never was a consulate in the history of China which occupied a fourth of this territory and that the property demanded runs to millions of dollars. Besides, they assert that the former government mansion must be occupied by the Chinese governor, and they have offered the former Posts and Telegraphs Building in its place.

The Japanese reply that their consulate in Tsingtao is something apart from other consulates and must overshadow others, so that

COSHOCTON HIGH IS OUTPLAYED BY MILLERSBURG HI

In a heartbreaking game on the Red Sea gridiron Saturday afternoon the Coshocton high school football team suffered defeat at the hands of the Millersburg high team by the score of 32 to 0.

An indefinable something was lacking in the Coshocton team.
The team played the game, tried kicks, plunges, punts, and passes to no avail.

The Millersburg line held them invariably. Although gains were made several times on passes, the team was unable to follow up.

With Millersburg on the offensive the Coshocton boys were apparently helpless. Only in the last quarter of the game did the local boys succeed in holding the invaders.

Millersburg scored two touchdowns in the first quarter, two touchdowns and a goal in the second quarter, and a touchdown and goal in the third quarter. The visiting team was exceptionally successful with long passes and quarterback sneaks.

Sam Watkins, of Wooster refused the game. Robert Reed of Coshocton umpired and W. R.
Todd, of Centre acted as head lineman.

the dignity of the Japanese Empire may be maintained. They also allege that the Posts and Telegraphs Building had already been promised by them for Great Britain and that the Chinese should not embarrass them now by refusing.

In the matter of shrines and cemeteries the Chinese insist on limiting the areas to those actually in use and not including the lands about them, which are in some cases gardens, residences and storehouses. The total Japanese claim is said to be in excess of fifty acres.

Still a further controversy has arisen over the matter of hospitals.
There are three hospitals in all—the former German hospital, a general hospital and a maternity home.
The first is by far the best, and the Chinese have offered to concede the other two. But the Japanese also want it and point with pride to the fact that the equipment is now all Japanese and must in any case be purchased by China.

The former German equipment, both of this hospital and of several other of the public workers, has been taken away by the Japanese and their own substituted. China demands that the German property be restored. Japan says it belongs to her by virtue of the "spoils of war" and is met by the argument that these "spoils of war" are limited by the Treaty of Versailles to thirty million dollars, and this China is paying.

Buick Service Protects Buick Owners Everywhere

Buick owners everywhere recognize this blue and white emblem of authorized service as further assurance of dependable Buick performance.

Experience has shown Buick owners that "authorized" service means a conscientious, helpful interest in the

Authorized service is a guarantee of skilled labor from mechanics of long experience on Buick cars, and that every new part is genuine, factory-made of the same high quality as the original unit.

It is an assurance that the establishment is conducted to serve Buick owners first, last, and always in the way that will continue the dependable performance built into every Buick car.

MY MARRIAGE PROBLEMS

Adele Garrison's New Phase of

Revelations of a Wife

Copyright, 1922, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

The Discovery Mother Graham Made in Dicky's Room.

MOTHER GRAHAM'S emotional transitions are as hard to follow as Katie's. I knew perfectly well that the real cause back of the angry, nervous outburst which had culminated in her slapping of Junior, was her wrath against me. But in her hysterical apology to me over the "kissing child" there had been no trace of anger. Instead, her poignant regret was pitiful in its meekness, and I hastened to comfort her.

"What nonsense, Mother!" I said in a matter-of-fact manner as I could manage. "Don't you suppose I know how you idolize the child? Besides, you had a great deal of education. He was very naughty, indeed."

I made my voice properly reproving for Junior's ears. With the blindest forgetfulness of young childhood he had hushed his sobs and was regarding me curiously from his grandmother's arms. But if I had cherished any idea that this speech would give my mother-in-law's feelings I was doomed to swift disappointment. With another of her lightning-like changes, she turned a frowning face toward me on two legs. It was a good thing she was out of the way. She probably would have stuck a bread-knife into me. Not that I don't deserve it.

"Well, if he was, whose fault is it? I'd like to know!" she demanded. "He's always tagging around after that ape of a Katie, and she's the nastiest thing I ever saw. I don't know what she's got into her head. It's a good thing she was out of the way. She probably would have stuck a bread-knife into me. Not that I don't deserve it."

She buried her face in Junior's curls with a convulsive sniff or two, while I mentally echoed her satisfaction that Katie had not witnessed the unusual grandmotherly disciplining of Junior.

Mother Graham's Decision.

"But I haven't any time to waste here," Mother Graham declared abruptly, setting Junior down with a kiss. "I'm going to give Richard's room a thorough overhauling. Of course, you'll think it's none of my business, but it's a crime the way you neglect that room. I can tell you I would have been thought pretty strackish if I had let my husband's room go undusted."

"Did you have separate rooms in those days?" I asked inquisitively.

"No," she snapped. "What's that got to do with it? I'd like to know."

"A great deal, I think," I answered.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE: I am a girl of about 20 years of age. I have been going with young men who have taken me out quite a bit, and, in fact, has shown me a very nice time.

He does not care for him the way he cares for me, and it is causing a little trouble, which I am afraid will break our friendship. He seems to think that we have some thing together, but I have an understanding between us, but I can't see it that way. I have told him so, but still he hangs around and in making me feel as though I am obligated to him. Please tell me what to do. W. H. L.

W. H. L.: Tell the young man frankly of your feeling for him. If he wishes to remain friendly with you under the present conditions, right. But if he is not content simply to be friends, say that you will have to give up your friendship with him.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE: When a young man and woman are deeply in love with one another and engaged, should either ever have anything to do with any other young man or girl? I am not sure of their affection, or kiss another. ADVICE.

ADVICE: If a man and girl are truly in love with each other, and unless they are in love they should not be engaged, they will find no interest in others.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE: What should you say if a young man wants to kiss you, and you don't want him to? Should three girls and young men go out riding if they know each other well? SHORTY.

SHORTY: Tell the young man that you do not permit young men to kiss you, and ask him not to make such an attempt. If he is a gentleman he will respect your wishes. Your parents are the ones to advise you about the driving.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of the paper sent really to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her, in care of this office.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

SUNDAY AND MONDAY,

NOV. 5-6.

Sunday's horoscope holds auguries of peace and quietude for the world, as the electric and mystical Neptune holds sway. Be cautious in all worldly affairs, and unfold the inner faculties by study and investigation, say the seers. Those whose birthday it is may encounter anxieties and peculiar conditions. They should beware deception and be discreet in all relationships. A child born on this day may be wayward, unsettled and eccentric unless given strict training.

Monday's astrological figure forecasts more unrest and activity in everyday affairs, which should react to the high stimulus of Mars—giving initiative and vigor in all enterprises. In other channels the conduct should be cautious and circumspect. Beware deception. Those whose birthday it is have the promise of an active and successful year, provided they guard against deception and are circumspect in their conduct. A child born on this day will be active, skilful and successful.

WINIFRED BLACK

WRITES ABOUT Eagles and Little Hens

Copyright, 1922, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

HE was a soldier in khaki from somewhere in Ohio.

A regular American, tall and slim, and broad-shouldered and deep-chested and smooth-faced and keen-eyed.

She was a French girl—attractive, clever, piquant.

They say she can take two or three yards ofingham and make a dress so smart that everyone who passes her in the street will want to copy it.

And her hats—my dear!

A pretty wit she has, too, and a pair of roguish eyes and a way with her—oh, decidedly a way with her!

And they met in France. And he thought she was too cute for words and she thought he was tres chic—and they fell in love and they promised to marry each other, just as soon as the war was over and the American got back home and could send for her.

Winifred Black

For the Best

And the war was over and the American did get back home and he wrote to the French girl and sent her the money for a ticket, and he told her he had the dearest little house for her all ready and furnished and it was in Ohio in the little town he loved and where he grew up from boyhood.

It wasn't big or extravagant at all, but it had a nice yard with some trees in it and a front porch and a back porch and a built-in ice-box, and screens and hardwood floors and everything, and he was crazy for her to come and see it and be married and live in the little house and be a real American—at last.

And the French girl thought the house must be funny, not at all like anything she knew in France. And she thought the people on the ship coming over were too odd for words—the women and, oh, the men—all Americans. And when she got to New York, really it was too ridiculous.

To call that a city—and civilized—what a joke!

And the American was cross and then he was thoughtful and then he wrote and told his little French sweetheart that he thought she would be happy—in France where she knew the ways and was accustomed to the people. She was lovely and sweet and all that, the American thought, but of course he couldn't blame her for hating the new ways and the new ideas.

As for himself—he was an American and he never could live anywhere else, and so perhaps—

And now she is on the ship going back to France and her dreams are over and so are his.

Quite for the best—it seems to me.

But It Often "Works"

It takes a deep love and a strong one, something 'way above the ordinary to make the eagle and the little barnyard hen happy together.

It's all very well for a smooth little duck who loves sailing on the pond and diving for weeds to admire the skylark. And it is charming for the gay skylark to sigh at the thought of the pretty little love duck and her chosen home in the water weeds. But if they should try to live together I'm afraid either the duck or the skylark would be pretty sure to get homesick once in a while.

Old associations, old memories, old ideas, the things your mother said when you were little, the things your father told you when you were learning your first lessons at school—these grow with the years, somehow they are like roots deep down in the soil and it is hard to pull them up without hurting.

Happy marriages between natives and foreigners—thousands of them—but the happiness is in spite of the difference in nationality and education and habit, not because of it, it seems to me.

I'm glad this particular American and this particular French girl changed their minds before it was too late.

I hope they'll both be very happy indeed—with somebody else.

YOUR HEALTH

What Nasal Polypi Are

and What to Do About Them

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Commissioner of Health, New York City

I SUPPOSE every person regards the interior of the nose as a space with smooth walls, not unlike a little room with regular contours.

Nothing could be further removed from the truth.

The inside of the nose is as twisted, irregular and complicated as can be imagined. The partition, or septum, between the two sides is supposed to be straight and flat. As a matter of fact, it is very likely to be deflected to one side or the other. This makes one side convex in its curvature and the other correspondingly concave.

The outer wall of each nasal cavity, the side toward the cheek, is thrown into folds. There are three shelves of bone—the turbinated bones—placed upon this outer wall. They have their flat surfaces directed upward, and their edges are toward the partition between the cavities.

Under each of these shelves is a space or cavity called a fossa or meatus. Each fossa is named according to its relative position. Therefore, we have the "inferior," the "middle," and the "superior" fossae.

The bones of the face are not solid. They are honeycombed with spaces, but not little cavities like those in the comb.

The spaces are larger, some of them capable of holding a tablespoonful or more of fluid.

The Nasal Passages.

The spaces are called the "nasal sinuses" or the "accessory sinuses." They open into the fossae of the nose, under the turbinated bones.

The large space underneath the cheek is called the "maxillary sinus" or the "maxillary sinus." It is the largest of the sinuses, and opens into the middle fossa.

Over the eye, underneath the inner end of the eyebrow, is another space, called the frontal sinus. It opens into the middle fossa.

There are other cavities called the sphenoidal and ethmoidal sinuses, which open into the nasal cavity.

The canal which carries the tears away from the eye is called the "nasal duct." This opens into the inferior fossa of the nose.

Lining the nasal cavities, covering all the projections, dipping down into the fossae, creeping up into the sinuses and ducts, hiding all the surfaces of the hills and valleys of this region is the mucous membrane.

In health and normal condition the mucous membrane is comparatively thin and evenly distributed. In disease, it may be swollen, red and angry in appearance, especially in spots.

Reasons for Polypus.

This is a condition which may result in nasal polypus. The mucous membrane gets thick and thicker, it begins to develop a state of the tissues not unlike "goose flesh." Gradually the growth develops until there may be a mass as big as a hazel-nut, perhaps hanging by a narrow stem like a pear.

If unchecked it continues to grow and may be as big as an eye and quite like an oyster in color and consistency.

Chronic nasal catarrh with pus infection of one of the nasal sinuses will lead to a favorable soil and condition for the development of nasal polypus or of a whole group of polypi.

The polypus may be snared out, but this is not a permanent cure. There must be treatment of the original disease or the polypus will return. That is the reason why the victim makes repeated visits to the nose specialist for further operations. If the patient will take the proper treatment after the polypus has been extracted there is every prospect of complete and permanent cure.

Answers to Health Questions.

B. C. D. Q.—Will you kindly tell me a remedy for excessive perspiration?

A.—Perspiration is nature's way of ridding the body of waste material. It is not advisable to interfere with the function.

A.—You should join a gymnasium and place yourself under the care of a physical instructor.

2.—Your height should be 5 feet 7 inches and your weight should be about 135 pounds.

S. B. Q.—Will you kindly tell me whether a person is apt to contract a cold from an open window while sleeping?

2.—Kindly tell me whether it is harmful to go outdoors after washing the hair.

A.—Fresh air will never hurt anybody, if not in a draft.

2.—It would not be advisable to go out-of-doors until the hair is thoroughly dry.

Dr. Copeland will answer for readers of this paper questions on medical, hygienic and sanitation subjects that are of general interest. Where the subject of a letter is such that it cannot be published in this column, Dr. Copeland will, when the question is a proper one, write you personally, if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is enclosed. HOME-MAKING HELPS

"Everything About the House Helps to Make the Home"

By WANDA BARTON

Solving Some Vital Household Problems.

BETTER HOME Week, widely observed not long ago, aroused much comment and some speculation as to whether the American home is holding its own in the midst of the world reconstruction which is going on far and wide. Of course, we, as Americans, feel that the home is the bulwark of the nation, and try to help in every way to make it so.

There are two shrines at which men in all times have worshipped—the altar of their religions and the hearthstone of their homes. The former often undergoes changes for various reasons, but a man's love for the home created for him by the dearest woman in the world, influences his entire life.

Home-making is a profession. The home need not be one of wealth, or one of greatness, but it must be founded on love to be a success. It is a hard task to tell a beginner just what to do to make a successful home, but we may outline a few points to help along her own intuition.

In the making of modern "better homes" there are a number of things to consider. The principal ones are the source of support and the situation of the home. Matters should be arranged so that the expenditure is just a little inside of the income. This insures peace of mind, and allows one to get down to a budget system that will work. Most systems fail when they are not built on this foundation.

Most systems fail when they are not built on this foundation.

No matter how much Father loves the family, he would often appreciate an interrupted hour to work out some problem in a quiet, comfy way.

The mother, too, often forgets to provide a spot where she may have a few quiet moments now and then. This is a serious oversight, especially if she is doing all or a greater portion of her housework, as she needs a rest often to conserve her energies. If these little peaceful spots are considered in the home-making, there will be no need for the usual wear and tear on the family nerves.

Good cheer and kindly consideration are expected from each member of the family, and any fault-finding should be done at a proper time and place, but never at meals. We recognize a real home the minute we step into it. If our own home lacks that atmosphere, we can get busy and see where the trouble lies and correct it before the ideal is dashed from our grasp. Let's make every week a better home week than the preceding one. Such a result is well worth the effort required.

Good Night Stories

WHEN MR. BEETLE CAME TO LIVE AT THE SEASHORE.

YOU can believe it or not just as you choose, but when Mr. Beetle moved out of the meadows down to the seashore there was great excitement among the crabs, turtles and oysters.

Johnny Grasshopper in passing one day spoke to him and Crabby Crab overheard him call the newcomer, Mr. Beetle.

Crabby Crab hurried as fast as he could down to the sandy bottom and told his friends their new neighbor's name.

"Indeed!" exclaimed Mrs. Oyster. "And you say he has legs like yours and everything?"

"Sure he has legs," replied Crabby Crab, "but not as many as I have."

"And his head, how is it?" asked Mrs. Oyster.

"His head has two ugly-looking jaws," replied Willy Turtle, "two feelers, one mouth and two eyes. And would you believe me when I say that he has a little horn-like shield over his mouth?"

CHICKENS COME HOME TO ROOST

THE DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE HAVE THEIR WIRES BADLY TANGLED AND HAVE MADE A BAD MESS OF THINGS, IN THEIR EFFORT TO BOOST THEIR CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR.

In several recent issues of the Daily Tribune there has appeared an advertisement, evidently not prepared by the Coshocton County Democratic Executive Committee, but sponsored by this committee, alleging that Colonel Carmi A. Thompson, the Republican candidate for Governor, has publicly pledged himself to a cut of the state tax levy for the maintenance of the public schools of the state and that such cut in the school levy would result in closing many of the schools in Coshocton County. Such a course is so in opposition to Colonel Thompson's sympathies and efforts, along educational lines, that the statement is recognized as absurd by people who know Colonel Thompson and also to those who are acquainted with his public career, but with those not so familiar with his record and well established principles this false political propaganda may have some influence.

What are the facts? During the Campaign, Colonel Thompson has repeatedly said that when he is Governor there will be a cutting down of some state tax levies for the relief of the overburdened tax payer, but he explicitly stated that this cut would not apply either to the Educational tax levy or to the levy for the care of the mentally, physically and otherwise deficient wards of the state. reer, but with those not so familiar with his record and well before the publication of the advertisement, referred to, by the Democratic Campaign Committee.

With Colonel Thompson's record and his campaign statements before them, the Democratic Committee designedly published a campaign lie, for the purpose of deceiving the people hoping to induce them to support their candidate for Governor.

GET THE TRUTH, THEN GO TO THE POLLS NEXT TUESDAY AND VOTE FOR CARMIA A. THOMPSON, FOR GOVERNOR, AND THE ENTIRE REPUBLICAN TICKET.

COSHOCTON COUNTY REPUBLICAN EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

What about Vic Donahey's capacity for the Governorship of Ohio?

Here is what Colonel E. H. Moore, of Youngstown, former Democrat National Committeeman, from Ohio, and pre-convention manager for ex-Governor Cox, during the presidential campaign of 1920, says of him:

"Any man who cannot make a speech unless it is written out for him, who cannot utter three sentences without as many grammatical errors, who addressed a letter to the former chief justice of the state as 'Hon. HUE NICKOLS,' who never conducted any important business enterprise, and failed in every petty one he ever had, who is as ignorant of the fundamentals of public and governmental business as a Hottentot, and above all is an arrant demagogue and religious bigot, is surely unfit to be governor."

This was occasioned because Donahey had presumed in a public speech, to read Colonel Moore out of the Democratic party. Donahey said "Moore is one of the Democratic bosses 'opposing me because he can't control me.' To which Moore replied he was supporting neither Thompson nor Donahey, and proceeded to read Donahey's title clear in plain language as indicated above.

Keep in mind that his estimate of Donahey is not Republican propaganda but comes from an Ohio Democrat high in the councils of the party, both state and national.

MENACE TO FUTURE

sion is to cure all "evils" in the state; and, not satisfied with this program, it is reaching out into the field of foreign relations with the idea of making Italy the master of the Eastern Mediterranean.

Danger of Outside War. (2.) One of its objects is to seize for Italy full control of Dalmatia, which was ceded to Yugoslavia by the treaty of Rapallo. If this scheme should be put into effect a war between these two countries would be inevitable and other nations of Eastern Europe would be bound to take a hand.

(3.) Not only is it fighting the Socialists but it has now come into conflict with the Peoples party, (the Catholics,) and so it is likely to have trouble with the Vatican. If a quarrel is picked with the Pope, France undoubtedly will take a hand in the affair because of the close relations of Paris with Vatican diplomacy.

(4.) Benito Mussolini, leader of the Fascisti, openly proclaims that one of the missions of the party is "to smash the British empire."

(5.) In the background are Hungary, eager to take advantage of any opportunity to recoup her war losses; Austria, brot to a dangerous mood by her poverty; the Little Entente which must stand together against any scheme to upset the present equilibrium in Central Europe; Germany, ready for a desperate adventure that will save her, France, willing to use her great army to forward her "safety first" policy; and Britain, torn by internal strife and therefore unable to exert her full power against trouble makers.

Culmination of a Long Struggle What has been happening in Italy in recent weeks is no sudden flareup, but the climax of a long struggle. To get to the beginning, it would be necessary to go far back into the history of the Socialistic movement, which by bitter agitation at last brot that party into a position of power in the last decade. In recent years the Socialists have been able to dictate many laws for the benefit of the workers and especially the election reform whereby representation was given in the Chamber of Deputies according to the proportion of the votes cast by the various parties. Under this law the Socialists became a powerful party and were often able to sway governments. This law has cut a large figure in the present crisis.

During the great war Socialists made bitter enemies among the patriotic elements in the country by their peace agitation. The terrible defeat of Caporetto was blamed on them because divisions largely composed of Socialists gave way before the Austrians. Many of the radicals suffered reprisals at that time.

After the war came disappointments to Italy, then the grave trade depression and heavy exactions by the Government in an attempt to balance the budget. The Communistic idea was presented by a strong propaganda as being on the road to success in Russia and took hold of the minds of the workers and the peasants. They set out to achieve a workers' revolution in the country and came close to success.

Got Power in Factories

In the Autumn of 1920 the intrigue for an industrial revolution was launched. The workers in Milan and other cities seized factories and held them. The movement was so powerful that Premier Giolitti dared not attempt to put it down. At one time more than 300 of the largest industrial works had the red flag floating over them. The Government compromised and forced the employers to accept laws which gave to the workers a larger voice in the management of industries.

This concession was bad enough for the country. It resulted in large increases in costs of manufacture and consequent inability of the mills to meet outside competition. It resulted also in the withdrawal of credit from such works. Many of them had to shut down or curtail operations sharply.

But the extremists were not satisfied. They undertook to extend their power. Unions of all kinds were formed and exactions and strikes followed. Municipal governments were seized and mob rule was extended everywhere. Peasants were egged on to the expropriation of land. The boast was made that the movement would soon gain such momentum that the Government at Rome would be taken over and Italy would join hands with Russia.

It was this condition of affairs which brot about the Fascist counter organization.

D'Annunzio the Real Apostle

D'Annunzio, the poet, was the real apostle of this crusade. When the Paris Peace Conference undertook to give Fiume to Yugoslavia he formed his legions of adventurous soldiers and other patriots and took that city in the name of Greater Italy. By the time the Communistic peril had reached its height the legionnaires had won their point in Fiume and had linked that city to Italy (unhappily for itself as events have shown.) They were looking for other worlds to conquer. The work of the Communists offered the opportunity to employ their perfervid patriotism.

By this time the solid citizenry of the country had become alarmed over the spreading anarchy and the Fascisti found powerful backers, who furnished the means for organization and transport. They openly gave notice that they would meet Communist "terror" with "terror."

At the January, 1921, Socialist Congress in Leghorn the party by a majority vote defeated a proposal to unite with the Moscow Internationals, but the minority decided to resort to "direct action." They promoted riots, organized strikes and engaged in destruction of property. To this the Fascisti made quick reply. They visited the homes of leaders of the movement, punished them and stripped their houses. As antagonism grew they smashed the offices of red newspapers and party headquarters and hunted down the agitators, visiting summary punishment on them.

The Government welcomed this aid, particularly as the Fascisti proclaimed their loyalty to the King. Police and troops did not interfere except to keep up appearances, even the pitched battles were fought.

The movement became highly popular. Some rough elements flocked to the standard of the new organization, but for the most part it drew in the people who were anxious for the preservation and expansion of Italy. From bands of adventurers, a well drilled army grew. The fighting forces of Mussolini, on the eve of the present crisis, were put at 350,000, formed into bodies on the lines of the old Roman phalanx, with plenty of arms, including artillery, and ammunition. Besides he had assurance that half the army would join him if necessary.

Strike Breaking Forces

Behind this military organization, a great strike breaking force grew up. Men and women who had mechanical skill were enrolled to be sent on any duty. If the workers in a factory should walk out, or should attempt sabotage, the Fascisti would send a force of their fighters to the scene. The workers would be warned to return to their tasks and behave themselves. If they showed fight they would be dealt with accordingly. If they simply refused to work the strike-breakers would be brot on and the factory would be opened and kept open until the strikers came in. And no picketing was permitted.

General strikes, fomented by the radicals in an attempt to create mob law, were treated in the same fashion. Members of the Fascisti have run street cars, baked bread, driven trucks, served as janitors, manned railroads—have done a thousand and one things needed to be done to keep an industrial plant or a city going.

The result has been the crushing of the Communistic movement in Italy. Even conservative labor organizations have now joined with the Fascisti party and it boasts it can count on the support of more than 3,500,000 followers ready to do anything at the orders of the chiefs.

The present crisis was precipitated by the demand of the Fascisti that the electoral law should be changed to deprive the Socialists and Communists of their power in the Government. Mussolini was implored to take seats in the Cabinet for himself and followers and help to run the Government or to go to the country in a new election. He refused such terms until proportional representation was abolished.

He took this ground because under the law no party can get a majority in the Chamber of Deputies; and he blames most of the troubles of the country on the bloc system which has often enabled the Socialists or the Catholics to hold the balance of power. Now that he has taken power it will be interesting to see how he makes Parliament obey his will—or fails to do so.

May Provokes Wars

However worthy may have been its objects, the Fascist movement is now suffering the fate of all such things. Built on extremism it must go on being extreme or lose its momentum. Now that it has gained power in the country, the fanatics who make up its striking forces will insist on going on to other and wider fields. The materials for mischief making of the first order are at hand.

Nationalist Italy has long suffered from a nightmare fear of the Slav. It has believed that some day Russia will come down through Bulgaria and Serbia and plant itself on the Adriatic. A strong power in possession of the Eastern shores of this sea, with its many strong harbors, would have the eastern coast of Italy, with its paucity of harbors, at its mercy. That was why Italy would not enter the great war until assured that control of Dalmatia should come to Rome and should not fall to a strong Slav nation.

Jugoslavia is not Russia, but she is becoming too strong for comfort, especially as a member of the Little Entente. So the Fascisti insist that the Italians shall take Dalmatia, as promised by the powers during the war. There are also disputes on the frontier above Fiume and troubles centering in that city which could easily be made into causes of conflict.

Extremists complain, too, that

BURY THE BREWERS' PROPOSAL UNDER AN AVALANCHE OF BALLOTS TUESDAY

Three years ago this same crowd of Brewers submitted an Amendment to Repeal the Ohio Prohibition Amendment. In the State-wide Vote this Wet Proposal of 1919 was defeated by a Majority of 41,853.

COSHOCTON COUNTY'S SHARE OF THAT GREAT VICTORY WAS 2,116.

On the Proposal to Repeal Prohibition in Ohio the Brewers got only 1,939 Votes in the entire County—

While our People voted to Sustain Prohibition by 4,055.

Let's beat the 1919 Vote Tuesday. Let's bury the Brewers' Proposed Amendment this time so deep that it will never be heard of again.

If the Brewers are able to cut that 1919 Dry Majority of 41,853, Ohio will never hear the last of it. If they can get the Coshocton County majority below 2,000 they will say Prohibition has grown unpopular and is Slipping.

Don't let that occur. It's up to us to keep Coshocton County true to her past. GET OUT THE DRY VOTE!

Let every Dry Man and Woman in the County go to the polls early and see that their Dry Neighbors do the same. GET OUT THE DRY VOTE!

Prohibition has been a Wonderful Blessing to uncounted Thousands of Families in Ohio. It has meant cleaner, brighter, healthier, happier Homes in this and every other County. Don't take a Backward Step. GET OUT THE DRY VOTE!

Prohibition has increased Savings Bank Deposits. It has purchased Food and Clothing for Thousands of Children. It has put fuel in the Coal Bin. It has stocked Pantries with Nourishing Food. Who would undo all this? GET OUT THE DRY VOTE!

Prohibition has reduced the Number of inmates in Work Houses and Jails and Infirmarys. It has dried the tears from the eyes of Children and cured the Aches in many a tired Mother's Heart and Back. Is all this worth while? IF SO, GET OUT THE DRY VOTE.

Think it over, Father, Mother, you who have been thru the Valley of Desolation on account of Strong Drink. Think it over before you consent to bring Booze back to Ohio. GET OUT THE DRY VOTE!

You Drys who Read this can't determine the Result in Ohio, but YOU CAN vote Coshocton County so everlastingly Dry that the Issue of Beverage Intoxicants will never raise its ugly Head again in this County. GET OUT THE DRY VOTE and do all that one Loyal County can to CRUSH NULLIFICATION past Hope of Resurrection!

Great Britain and France have been permitted to get too much of the former lands of the Turks. Fascist leaders believe a strong foreign policy would enable Italy to engineer deals which would make her the predominant power in the Eastern Mediterranean. If they should enter upon such a policy they would stir up antagonisms in the Near East and Balkans which would be bound to bring on fresh outbreaks.

What they would do to "smash the British Empire" remains to be seen; but there are plenty of firebrands lying around in Egypt, Palestine and Mesopotamia; and Italy is closer to all of them.

In the end the "saviors of Italy" may wreck a lot of things; including their own country and themselves.

the 18th amendment; he was the only senator of 96 to vote against the naval limitation treaty; he has been the champion in the senate of many of the foreign groups contained in his constituency—and it is upon this totally independent and "irregular" record that he feels confident today he will be returned to Washington for another six years.

France is a political maverick, self-acknowledged and self-classified. The Republican national committee, in disturbing speakers, conveniently overlooked Maryland. He is opposed within his own state organization no less bitterly than by the Democratic organization, and yet with all he was conceded today a good chance of winning on Tuesday.

His opponent, William Cabell Bruce, an old line Maryland Democrat, prominent in legal and social circles, has savagely attacked his record.

"Bolshevism" and "Socialism" have been hurled at Bruce's head almost daily for three months, and the urbane senator from Maryland has calmly accepted the epithets.

"There is only one class to which Senator France can appeal" said Bruce heatedly, in one of his closing speeches. "That is the Bolsheviks—absolutely unassimilated in our population. There are some in our state—they belong to Senator France, not to me."

France made no denial of the charges. Instead he silently accepted the diatribe, and forthwith accused Bruce of "hypocrisy."

"I stand on my record and my conviction," said Senator France. "I am no hypocrite; I vote my own convictions; not somebody else's." The Democrats are confident of their ability to defeat France, altho they concede that the senator will pick up a tremendous "red" and "foreign born" vote which is heavy anyway.

But if France wins—and he is conceded a good chance of winning—party managers in both Republican and Democratic organizations will throw their hands in the air and quit. He will not only have defeated the Democratic organization, but a good part of his own organization as well. His nomination not by primary but by party convention, badly split the Republican ranks.

France has conducted a campaign wholly without precedent in Maryland politics. He has flooded the state with his senatorial speeches and judiciously enclosed with them literature on banking, cooking, and other domestic tasks, designed to appeal to the housewife.

If he wins, it is conceded today he will occupy a position in Maryland compared only to that of La Follette in Wisconsin.

The New Russia

A New Series on the Soviet Regime by Georges Popoff

Twenty-two Protests Against New Economic Policy, But Comes Back to the Fold

BY GEORGES POPOFF
International News Service Staff Correspondent

MOSCOW, Nov. 4.—The only actual deed which the "Opposition of the 22" undertook was an interpellation to the Communist International containing a protest against the new economic policy.

This appeal to the Communists "abroad" (for the Soviet Government regards the Third International, though Moscow is its headquarters, as a non-Russian institution) roused the ire of Lenin and his adherents. The 22 opponents were promptly excluded from the Communist party.

This happened last February. But as early as March the "Insurgents" returned, repentant, to the fold of the party and took part in the Eleventh Congress at the end of that month as equal members. It is true that now and then they resumed their rebellious attitude against Lenin. Nearly all of the 22 made speeches against him and the new economic policy. The reports of these sessions were kept secret. It is said, however, that Lenin threatened some of his rebellious party brethren with having them shot. And then he delivered his great address. Anyone who has ever heard Lenin knows the ruthless manner in which he drives the truth home to his hearers. He is like a schoolmaster scolding a band of naughty boys. Every word is a moral slap in the face. It is safe to say that none of the Communists assembled in the Kremlin during the "epoch-making" congress has been told the truth with such brutal directness as they were that day by Lenin, that fantastic genius, who, in spite of his fantasy, is one of the greatest "real-politiker" (practical politicians) that ever lived.

LENIN REVEALS TRUTHS

Here are some of the truths he told them:

"To establish a Communist society thru the hands of Communists is a perfectly childish idea." "Marx wrote about Socialism as it had been developed in former centuries—but what he wrote does not apply to Russia."

"A world revolution cannot be made without making promises. It matters not whether they are fulfilled or no. Whoever does not understand that does not understand at all how a revolution must be made."

Lenin told truths and the opposition grew mute—an "opposition" whose end was just as insignificant

POPOFF REVEALS INSIDE STORY OF 22's OPPOSITION

The accompanying article is the second installment of Mr. Popoff's new series on Soviet Russia. In this section he deals understandingly with the underlying causes of the disaffection which developed in the ranks of the Communist party and with the masterful manner in which Lenin overcame the "Opposition of the Twenty-two."—I. N. S.

as its origin.

For some incomprehensible reasons European and American public opinion attached a much too great importance to this episode upon the stage of Communism in Russia.

"Either we communists succeed in supplying the peasants with goods and thus help them, out of their straits or they will send us to the devil." The fear lest the latter happen may have been the real key to the present policy of the Soviet Government. But to the Kremlin the question of how goods are supplied to the peasants is more important than the question of who shall do it. Who is to have charge of the supply? The natural answer is: "We Communists—no one else in the world." Not the domestic speculator, not the "partyless" manufacturer, not the foreign merchant, not the international capitalist. "Ourselves alone. For in this question the greatest menace to communism lies hidden. It is the danger that the domestic or foreign merchant, in supplying the peasant, might undermine the authority of the Soviet Government and gain political domination over the peasant along with the latter's economic dependence upon them."

MUST CONTROL SUPPLIES

The rulers in the Kremlin would be stupid if they had not recognized this. All their actions at home and abroad—especially at Genoa and The Hague—were guided by the principle that the control of supplies must not be relinquished. That is the sum and substance of their "recalcitrance," the rack against which both conferences were shipwrecked. In other matters, too, the fear of the foreign provender is shown. For instance: The stubborn clinging to the foreign trade monopoly. This monopoly is not motivated primarily by purely economic considerations. Problems of economy are only relative considerations in the complex of the Communist experiment and politics overshadows everything else. Whenever possible the economic welfare of the people is unhesitatingly sacrificed to the principle of the retention of power.

Lenin Silences Opposition As He Reveals How Revolution Must Be Made.

But here is where the Soviet Government is today confronted by a dilemma: International capitalists are not to be permitted to come into immediate contact with the Russian consumer, the peasant. But without the capitalist the providing of the peasants is almost impossible. And, finally, he must be provided, else he "will send us to the devil."

Is there a way out? None is visible. Fear still reigns supreme. The one great, all overshadowing fear lest the hand of European capitalism gains a firmer grip upon the Russian peasant than the red, rough fist of Communism—this fear still holds the forefront of the Russian stage.

PRINCIPLE MAIN BOND

The opposition to Lenin shares this fear and that is the reason for its silence. In this question the urge of self-preservation united the two camps. As a matter of fact, that principle is the main bond uniting the 200,000 responsible Communists of present-day Russia and will no doubt hold them together in the future. That is and will remain the reason of Bolshevik unity.

It is folly to speak of "left" and "right" Communists. Lenin has no opposition. Trotsky, too, has repeatedly declared of late that he endorses the new course.

Lenin's death would hardly change this. It is possible that his death would show definitely whether the Soviet power actually is merely the rule of a system, a caste or whether certain personalities within that party are able to develop their own lust for power.

In the question of the economic, political course there will be no wavering. With or without Lenin there will be no retracting of steps upon the road of "military Communism." The principle of self-preservation urges in another direction. Whither? Perhaps to the establishment of a "Communist capitalism."

History does not stand still. It fosters and furthers new conceptions, new economic forms and a new order of society. To divine them requires an entirely new orientation of our thought-life—and if this is true of the world at large it is most particularly true of Russia.

Georges Popoff's next article to appear on this page will deal with the Jewish situation in Soviet Russia. He answers fully and impartially, for the first time, many puzzling questions in this category.—I. N. S.

CHINA IN EARNEST IN NEW OPIUM WAR

Elimination Campaign Is To Be Undertaken When Poppy Is In Full Bloom

(By THOMAS MELOY)
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PEKING, Nov. 4.—"Opium must be abolished," says the president of China, in a forceful mandate recently issued. The government has appointed a committee to investigate the traffic. The members include the military and civil authorities of every province. A member from the International Anti-Opium Society will be given a seat, also. The various educational, missionary and anti-vice societies of all China are requested to cooperate.

"We mean business this time," say officials. The committee is armed with full powers, and its work has the unanimous approval of the cabinet. The situation is described as serious, for the growth of the poppy has been steadily on the increase. This is laid to the military, who derive large profits in the collection of opium taxes and the granting of illegal permits. Full publicity is now proposed, and the war lords must face the issue, whether they wish it or not.

The investigation will be carried on when the poppy is in bloom, so that there will be no chance for concealment. In the past many of the inspectors have been handicapped for lack of tangible evidence. With public opinion really stirred it is hoped to get results.

The opium sellers have begun a defense. In many places they claim that whole communities would be deprived of their sole means of livelihood if they were not permitted to grow the poppy. They also assert that until Burma and India and other members of the British Far Eastern colonies are also prohibited from raising this crop there will be no appreciable decrease in the manufacture or sale of opium. In the mountainous districts the coolies smoke about one pill a night, and this moderate consumption is said to be no more harmful than tobacco.

The stimulant also permits them to rest during the cold, wet nights and is practically the only pleasure they have.

A much more sinister drug, which is working havoc among the poor people, is morphine. This has been brought in to a large extent by Japanese smugglers. Whole villages have been ruined, and the Japanese have been protected by their extraterritoriality privileges. The Nippon Government is taking measures to punish its subjects engaged in this traffic.

attacks made on some of our candidates, regarding this issue, are entirely groundless."

George M. Gray, chairman of the Republican executive committee, said: "During the past 10 days I have attended a number of political meetings over the county, and the indications are that the people are changing their minds. While the straw votes did indicate a Democratic victory, I am convinced that there is a powerful undercurrent that will carry the Republicans over the top on Tuesday."

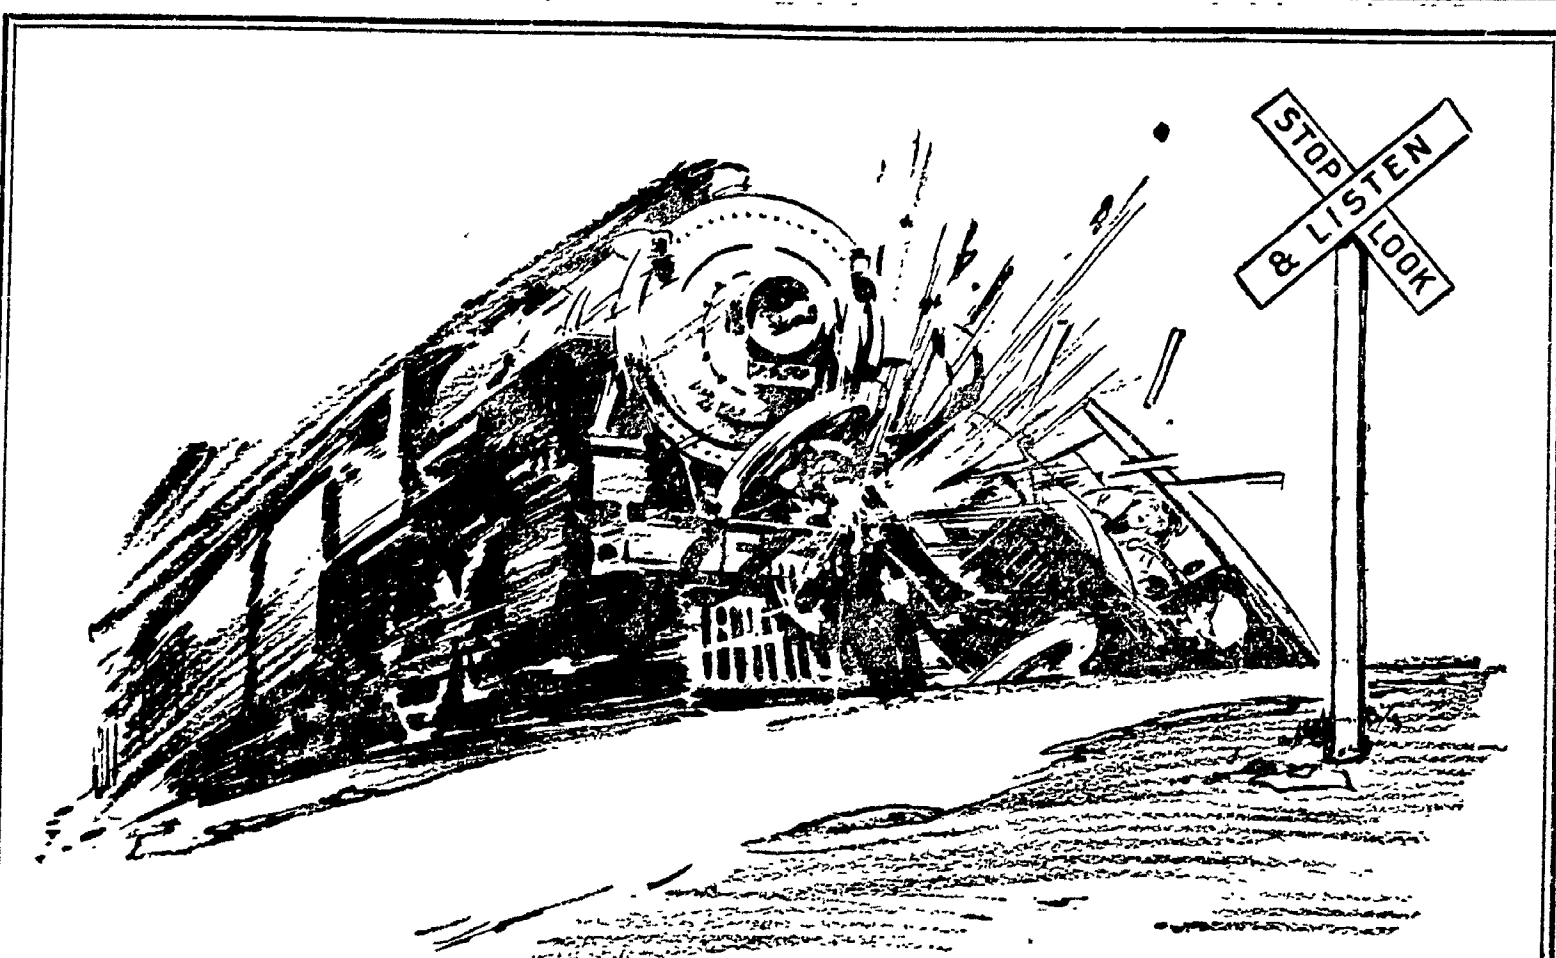

Poss will make a good showing in the county, and I am almost sure that Morgan will carry the county. Morgan has made phenomenal gains in the county in the past 10 days. His record in congress for the farmer and laboring man speak well for him, and I believe the thinking people of the county will concede him the victory."

Not true to the chances of the county candidates on the Republican ticket he said, "We have had a clean campaign in this county so far and I have nothing detrimental to say of the Democratic candidate. I know they are capable persons. The trouble is, they are on the wrong side."

"The people in the county are awakening to the fact that it is essential that Republicans be represented on the courthouse and they will be after this election."

"I am A. Thompson has made remarkable gains in this county in the past week or two, and I believe that he will be elected by a majority of 10,000."

"My statements are based upon observations that I have made."

RUSSIAN SCIENTIFIC MEN PLAN TO HUNT FOR IRON DEPOSITS

MOSCOW, Nov. 4.—The All-Russian Congress of Physicists has just held a meeting at Nizhny Novgorod, where ninety-nine papers were presented reviewing the achievements of science in Russia and abroad during recent years.

Two hundred members were in attendance—professors, engineers, chemists and physicists. The subjects discussed were physics, radio technique, technophysics and biophysics.

An expedition to Eastern Siberia was projected to make observations of magnetic conditions. The object is to find, perhaps in the valleys of the Amur and Lena rivers, a tremendous iron basin hidden there.

A movement was started to begin against the publication of scientific works in Russia.

A method has been perfected in Europe for the manufacture of brick from a form of slag made by the contact of molten blast furnace slag and water.

NO SENATORIAL ELECTION

Sign Of Public Attitude Toward G. O. P., Say
Experts

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Nov. 4.—One of the principal questions lurking in the minds of politicians of the Southwest since members of Congress at Washington "pulled stakes" several weeks ago will be answered when Oklahomans step to the polls in a few days to decide whether Miss "Aunt" Alice Robertson, of Muskogee, Republican Congresswoman, will be among those occupying seats in the House of Representatives when the Sixty-eighth Congress convenes. "Aunt" Alice is a candidate to succeed herself in the Second District.

An enthusiastic supporter of the Harding administration since first "rubbing elbows" with fellow Congressmen, "Aunt" Alice's political fate will be a potential indicator as to whether or not Oklahomans are pleased or dissatisfied with the present regime at Washington.

re-elected the record of the Harding administration will have been completely endorsed, political wiseacres agree, while, on the other hand, her defeat will be a severe slap at President Harding and his advisory "family."

This venerable Congress woman, who for the last two years, has been the only one of her sex in Congress, has as her opponent W. W. Hastings, Democrat, of Table-qual. His campaign has been waged with frequent verbal "potshots" at the recently enacted tariff law. Hastings also endorsed the policies of Woodrow Wilson, it is said, in his speeches.

No Senators will be elected in the State this Fall.

The gubernatorial race has well-nigh equalled in interest the national issues. It has become one of the most heated campaigns in the history of the State. Championing the cause of farmer-labor organizations, which are similar in many respects to North Dakota's Non-Partisan League, Mayor J. C. ("Jack") Walton, of this city, has campaigned intensively to capture the gubernatorial honors, on the Democratic ticket. Arrayed against him is John Fields, editor of the Oklahoma Farmer, who won the Republican nomination.

FIELDS ATTACKS WALTON.
Fields, in his campaign, has dealt almost entirely with straight State issues and in his speeches, it is said, spasmodically attacked the contemplated plans of Mayor Walton, declaring they were "pure socialism."

Numerous bank failures—upward of sixty, according to records of the State Banking Department—throughout the State within the past two years have caused unprecedented alarm over the banking question. This is but one of several tangled issues which voters of Oklahoma will endeavor to untwist when they advance to the polls.

All in all, the dopesters are quite chary with their predictions as to who will be the State's next Chief Executive.

Gun Fails, So Western Man Bulldogs Big Buck

ARVADA, Wyo., Nov. 4.—Be coming provoked at an unmanageable gun, N. P. Brown, member of the Sheridan City Fire Department, is credited with "bull-dogging" a buck deer in real Western style.

Brown cornered the animal in a draw along Powder River, where he was hunting, and succeeded in grasping the antlers of the buck and, after a terrific battle, choking the deer into unconsciousness.
